KKG was referred to us through our Real Estate Liaison. The client previously had an old Victorian home with ample charm as their workplace. Replicating that feel with corporate furniture in a new build posed a challenge and forced LOTH to think outside the box for different product offerings.

“ KKG chose to work with LOTH early in the process due to our customer experience and preparedness in our initial meetings. They enjoyed our approach to creating a design that was customized to their business needs and aesthetic. ”

Creative Thinking

LOTH provided a residential feel with contract furniture. We took the design intent very seriously and went the extra mile in researching appropriate product lines to use.

Inspired by LOTH's Own Space

The clients visited our Grandview Work Studio and loved being able to see a space with a similar feel as their new space. They appreciated our process and the ability to see various lines of product in person.

collaboration + engagement

Product Partners
Included: Steelcase,
Coalesse, OFS Brands,
First Office and Dauphin

The new space is an open workplace with high-end finishes in an excellent location that offers beautiful views – Dublin's Bridge Street District.

KKG brought a lot of their archives to the new space and intentionally placed them throughout their office. The items pay tribute to their roots and act as a reminder to their team of who they are and where they came from.

Solving for Key Issues

- Growing amount of collaborative work
- Attracting + retaining talent
- Generations at work
- Real Estate compression + need to reduce cost
- Brand building - use space as a brand tool
- Designing for the environment
